His main thesis is stated in the title of the book: we become like what we worship. We are by nature worshipping creatures, and we will eventually become like what we worship. If that is God, we will be molded into God's image (which is what we were created to do). But if we worship idols, we will become like idols. Beale demonstrates that this idea about idolatry and worship permeates the Scripture.

We become what we worship. That is to say, we emulate—or become like—the people (and things) we most admire. To understand this concept, we have to understand the origins of the word worship. The word worship comes from the Old English worðscip or wurðscip —or worth ship—meaning "condition of being worthy, dignity, glory, distinction, honor, renown."

We Become What We Worship: A Biblical Theology of Idolatry - DTS Voice. "We resemble what we revere, either for ruin or restoration" (p. 49). This is the reverberating refrain in this book. This is the nature of idolatry, and readers will be forcefully confronted with the widespread and devastating problem of idolatry throughout Scripture.

We Become What We Worship: A Biblical Theology of Idolatry ...
We become what we worship, either for restoration or ruin. This is what it means for God to be holy, to be jealous, zealous for His people, caring about us as His image bearers and wanting us to flourish in right relationship with Him, others, and the rest of the created order.

We Become Like What We Worship - Capturing Christianity
This psalm is a sobering reminder that we become like what we worship. Therefore, we should be careful not only to avoid false idols, but also to not worship some warped caricature of God that we have invented in our own minds, rather than the true and living God, who has revealed himself in the person of Jesus Christ.

We Become Like What We Worship: Psalm 115 - Seedbed
Our reading connects what we worship to what we become: "they followed emptiness and became empty" (15b, NABRE). While the NIV reads "worthless" and this is a valid translation, the Hebrew word also carries the sense of "being without substance."

WE BECOME WHAT WE WORSHIP - Scripture Union
"We become what we worship" is the basic insight of G K Beale's book of the same name. Unfortunately it's an "academic" book and, like most academic books, suffers from being twice as long and complicated as it ought to be (where have all the brave editors gone?).
